

Kefalonia,

Myrtos Beach

Παραλία Μύρτου

By Niko Agourakis

Kefalonia,

Myrtos Beach

By Niko Agourakis

Kefalonia,

Myrtos Beach

CONTENTS

---

Introduction .....	1
Location .....	2
Geology and History .....	3
Fun Facts .....	4
Scrapbook .....	5
Bibliography .....	6

Introduction

This booklet is all about Myrto's Beach in Kefalonia. I will be running through its history, geology, its location and some fun facts. There is also a gallery of pictures at the end! So what are you waiting for?

Location

Myrtos Beach is located on the north-west coast of Kefalonia. Kefalonia is an Ionian Island which has a beautiful landscape and seas of stunning tranquility. Driving on the scenic route from Fiskardo, it's about a half an hour to 40 minute drive. On the drive, you go on a winding road until you reach a turning to go down to the beach. Another long winding road outstretches as you go round a sharp corner which everyone stops to take photos. When you get down to the beach, you park literally on the beach and get out the car to go swimming!

Geology and History

The surrounding sediment at Myrtos Beach is generally made of marble and the beach is made up of round, white cobblestones.

Kefalonia is one of the largest Ionian islands. It is right in the middle of two tectonic plates which bashed together creating many devastating earthquakes. The most recent earthquake in Kefalonia was the 'Great Earthquake of 1953'.

Fun Facts

There is a cave
at the far left of the beach!

The beach is a mile-and-a-half long!

The waves are perfect for bodyboarding!

There are lot's of amazing white pebbles of all shapes and sizes!

Scrapbook

Bibliography

Wikipedia (www.en.wikipedia.com)

Wiki Answers (www.wiki.answers.com)

Google Images (www.images.google.com)

So to sum up this EXTREMELY short bibliography, there was a lot of reasearch done inside my brain and picking my dad's too for memories of our amazing holidays in Kefalonia.